THE COMMONWEALTH WAR GRAVES COMMISSION

With information taken from The Commonwealth War Graves Commission (CWGC), this brochure honours the 125 fallen during WWI and the 105 who also made the ultimate sacrifice during WWII.

The CWGC honours the 1.7 million men and women of the Commonwealth forces who died in the First and Second World Wars, and ensures they will never be forgotten.

The CWGC Commemorations team ensures that CWGC commemorates all Commonwealth war casualties. Not everyone who died during the two world wars is formally designated a war casualty. The intention was to ensure that everyone who had died during the official dates of the conflict and as a result of their war service would be formally commemorated. To achieve this Commonwealth military and auxiliary organisations set individual criteria to determine which of their servicemen and women qualified. Additional rules were introduced for Commonwealth civilians killed during the Second World War.

Individuals may not have been commemorated for various reasons. Many people died during the war years but in circumstances which mean they don't meet the relevant criteria. Others were missed from a key record due to an administrative error. Often neither the military authorities nor the Commission were informed of the death of former servicemen and women who died after they were discharged. Where evidence confirms that the circumstances of their death meet the requirements set out in the Royal Charter, the CWGC will arrange for them to be commemorated.
